OLD LANDMARK TO GO

Lovelady Dwelling on Main Street Will Be Replaced by Modern Business Building.

One by one the old landmarks in Dallas are disappearing before the rapid march of progress and development. Among the oldest soon to go is the Lovelady dwelling house on the corner of Main and Washington streets, which will be removed to make room for a modern business building, to be occupied by the Adams furniture store.

The new building will be constructed of iron, with a concrete foundation. The foundation will be built sufficiently strong to support a brick building at any time it is desired to remove the iron structure and build of the former material. The building will be 85 by 100 feet in size, with a handsome glass front.

The lessees of the building are Ralph Adams and Harry Hibbard. These gentlemen have formed a partnership under the firm name of Adams & Company and will carry a complete stock of housefurnishing goods. They will also add a large stock of farming implements. Both are wide-awake, courteous young business men and are sure to succeed in their new venture.

MANY STUDENTS COMING

Dallas College Will Open Its Doors September 25 With Large Attendance.

Dallas College will enter the seventh year of its existence with the opening of the coming school term on Wednesday, September 25. Considering the shortness of its career as a college, the rapidity of its growth and the great prestige already attained among the schools of Oregon are truly remarkable.

Beginning in the union of LaCreole Academy and Lafayette Seminary, and at first an institution scarcely known outside of Polk county, in six years it has grown to a station where its name is known among nearly all the colleges of the three Pacific states, and has acquired a most enviable reputation in all branches of collegiate and inter-collegiate activity.

Each year sees the school in a firmer position, financially, than the previous year. At present all deficits have been paid up, and the books stand clear, with the endowment fund still intact. Last year $30,000 was pledged to the college by its supporters in various places. Andrew Carnegie had promised to donate $5,000 to the school provided they raised $20,000, hence the endowment fund has practically been increased by the amount of $25,000.

Four years of unvaried success in basketball, crowned last season by the winning of the championship of Oregon, have fully established its reputation for athletic prowess.

The success of the school along all lines has been marked, and its graduates have been almost invariably successful in the work which they undertook after finishing their college course. The percentage of Dallas College graduates who have undertaken teaching and have succeeded in that work, is almost as great as among the graduates from the State Normal schools.

Yet great as has been its progress in the past Dr. Mock, the president of the institution, declares that he believes the school year never before opened with as bright prospects as at the present time. He anticipates a larger attendance than ever before, and looks forward to the establishment of a yet closer bond of sympathy between the citizens of Dallas and the college.

In regard to his policy in conducting the school this year he said: "I stated my policy last year at the beginning of school, and since then my opinions have undergone no change." He believes that since the college must to a large extent rely on the town for support he should take no steps which would lead to enmity or ill feeling on the part of either. "While I cannot control the actions of the individual, and though I will consider it my right to adhere to my personal opinions, the policy of the school will be to confine itself to those things alone which lie properly within its sphere."

Dr. Mock believes that this will be the most successful year the college has ever enjoyed and says that his aim will be to make it an institution of which the citizens of Dallas may all be justly proud, and he adds "with their assistance I know that I can do this."

A great investment, absolutely safe, brings returns that nothing else can; giving surplus earning power; securing comfort and health in your declining years. That's what Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea does. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Belt & Cherrington.

FREE DRINKING FOUNTAIN

Enterprising Business Men Are Preparing to Supply This Needed Convenience.

Through the enterprise of Ralph Adams, Harry Hibbard and Frank Pepper, Dallas will soon have her long-needed public drinking fountain. These gentlemen are preparing to install a fountain suitable for man and beast at the corner of Main and Washington streets. Messrs. Adams & Hibbard will buy and set up the fountain and Mr. Pepper will furnish free ice for the same.

A public fountain has been needed in Dallas for many years, and the voluntary action of these progressive business men in supplying the need at their own expense will be appreciated by every citizen of the town and farmer of the surrounding country.

William Baker is, in a measure, recovered from the injury received Monday, by falling from the air shaft in S. P. Kimball's prune drier. He regained consciousness Wednesday, and if he continues to improve he will be moved to the Salem hospital today. His father, W. H. Baker, of Salem, has been with him since Tuesday.

Women have decided that in case they cannot vote, they will cut out the "Stork" proposition. Perfectly proper to take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. It's good for everything. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Belt & Cherrington.
